Free Hegari Seed Supply Exhausted By Large Demand

Many Who Came For Seed Had To Be Turned Away By Firm

2500 POUNDS GIVEN

New Supply Ordered To Be Sold, Expected to Arrive Soon

More than 2,500 pounds of Hegari seed has been distributed free to Hempstead county farmers, and as much more will be sold within the next week at about 10 cents a pound, Monts Seed Store announced this morning.

Hegari is advanced as a hot weather substitute for grain and roughage, being similar to kaffir corn or maize, but being exceptionally resistant to heat and drought. It planted before August 10 it will mature before frost, it is claimed; and it offers a valuable livestock feed for local farmers whose corn crop has been damaged or destroyed by the drought.

Hegari is sometimes known as "high gear," and is being widely planted in Hempstead county ever since Monts' free offer of seed.

Seed has been reordered, and a much larger acreage of hegari is expected to be planted in the next two weeks. The drought has dealt severely with the corn crop, and this late fodder is looked to as an emergency measure.

Regular Meeting Elks' Lodge Held

Dr. McDonald Reports on Visit to National Convention

The local lodge of Elks held their regular business meeting Monday night, which was well attended.

Dr. T. L. McDonald, now serving his second term as Exalted Ruler, made his report to the lodge of his attendance at the grand lodge which was held in Atlantic City, July 17 to 19.

Enroute he visited the Elks national home at New Bedford, Va., the home of aged Elks. There are 303 residents of the home.

They are not allowed to do any manual labor about the place, and every attention is given for their comfort. A large bus is at their disposal at all times. The buildings are large and comfortable and the grounds beautiful.

Dr. McDonald also advised the lodge that the grand lodge appropriated $50,000 to assist the American Legion in building a home in Paris, France. Many members of Elks lodges were in France during the war. The Hope lodge of Elks had the highest percentage of its members in the service of any lodge in the United States, which was about 90 per cent.

The Elks lodges of Arizona and New Mexico were aided by the grand lodge in their work of caring for tubercular members who go there from many parts of the United States. No one with a communicable disease is permitted to enter the Elks national home at New Bedford.

The Atlantic City convention was the largest attended of any past session of the grand lodge. Arkansas was especially favored by Dr. Leonard Ellis of Hot Springs being elected Grand Royal Knight.

Over two and one half million dollars was spent last year for charity and welfare work by all the Elks lodges with a combined membership of nearly 800,000.

The local Elks lodge voted to place a float in the Watermelon Festival parade on August 7. The contract was awarded to A. D. Brennan, expert float builder.

As a further effort of cooperation the Elks have donated the use of their lodge room to the Watermelon Pageant committee, headed by Dr. W. R. Alexander, for the use of Paegent rehearsals.

May Obtain Rain In State Tonight

Clouds Here and in Little Rock Follow Government Forecast

Cloud banks hanging low above the city this morning gave promise that the Weather Man's forecast of stormy weather the next few days might be fulfilled.

The heat continued intense as of the last several days, with a humidity that appeared to indicate the possibility of rain.

Little Rock Hopedul

LITTLE ROCK, July 22.—(AP)—Eyes turned hopefully to the sky today as black clouds rolled up to fulfill the promise of rain made for East Arkansas.

Terrific heat has gripped the entire state this week, one heat death being reported in Rogers, and one prostration there and in this city.

The maximum temperature yesterday in Little Rock was 96, with 100 reported in Fort Smith. The morning thermometer in Little Rock had reached 94 before noon, indicating a still hotter day.

Five Years In Pen Sentence of McCoy

Defendant Unmoved As Verdict of Guilty Is Returned

PRESCOTT, Ark., July 22.—A jury in Nevada county circuit court Monday night found Obe McCoy guilty of second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Fell Phillips last May at Falcon, 35 miles southeast of here, and assessed his punishment at five years in the state penitentiary.

The jury returned his verdict at 8:30 p. m., after deliberating for four and a half hours. McCoy set unmoved as the verdict was returned.

The conflicting testimony of McCoy and his brother, Ben McCoy, chief state witness, featured the trial. A large crowd packed into the courtroom to see the brother against brother drama unfolded.

Ben McCoy testified for the state that his brother was eating supper with him and became angry when told to quit cursing at the table. He said that the affair apparently was ended after they engaged in a scuffle on the back porch.

Ben McCoy said that he started into the house and that Obe grabbed a shotgun from the wall and shot at him, killing Mrs. Phillips, who was standing at the door.

The testimony of Ben McCoy was supported by that of his wife, a sister of the slain woman.

Obe McCoy, testifying in his own defense, said the quarrel with his brother was caused by the fact that he had been compelled to accompany officers on a raid on a still a short distance from Ben's home that afternoon.

The defendant said his brother cursed and abused him while they were eating supper and arose with the remark, "I'll fix you so you won't turn up any more skulls."

Obe and Ben went into the front room and that he followed. He said Ben grabbed the gun from the wall and that he grabbed the barrel to protect himself. He said they were joined in the scuffle by Ben's wife and that all three had their hands on the gun when it discharged.

Forest Supervisor of State To Speak

Will Deliver Series of Lectures During Farmers' Week

People who are interested in knowing something of the two National Forests in Arkansas and the work that is being done upon them will be glad of the opportunity to hear R. N. Conarro, acting forest supervisor of the Ouachita National Forest when he speaks at the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture during Farmers' Week August 5-8, states Lynn L. Smith, county agent, Mr. Conarro, who has been actively identified with forestry work in Arkansas for a number of years, plans to outline the activities of the Forest Service as carried out on the public forests of the state.

Few persons realize the number of different activities in which the members of the Forest Service take part in connection with their duties as guardians and administrators of the public domain. The first duty of the forest officers is to protect the lands from fire and that is perhaps their greatest administrative problem.

Fire is a constant menace during the fire season and a net work of safeguards must be operated in order to hold losses to a minimum. There are timber sales, road building, grazing, and countless other details to be handled in the course of the year. A generous proportion of the gross income of the forest goes to school and road funds within the counties where the income is produced.

There are thousands of visitors every year to Arkansas' two National Forests. Mr. Conarro will present in an interesting light to Arkansas people this great asset of theirs.

Plane Drops Into River, None Hurt

Colonel on Way to Flood Meeting Spilled in Mississippi

Their amphibious plane capsized while making a landing in the river. None was injured, and the plane can be recovered without damage, according to Pilot Omble.

Lieut.-Col. Wilby was to have met the flood control committee, including congressmen from Illinois, at Melwood, where he planned to take them on an aerial survey of the Mississippi levees below Memphis.

Gehlbach Leads Off In Arkansas Ship in New York

Little Rock Aviator Heads Parade to Cincinnati

TO FLY WIDE OPEN

Declares He Will Extend Commandaire to the Limit

ROOSEVELT FIELD, New York, July 22.—(AP)—Led by Lee Gehlbach, flying a Little Rock (Ark.) entry, the 17 planes remaining in the All-American Air Derby took off here today for Cincinnati. They began leaving the ground at 10:23 E. S. T.

Gehlbach, who brought his Commandaire plane into New York 23 minutes ahead of the field, announced his intention of doubling that lead on the lap to Cincinnati. "I will fly wide open all the way regardless of the strain on the motor," he said.

Gehlbach plans to change motors at Little Rock, and once again later on.

LITTLE ROCK, July 22.—Little Rock invites the whole of Arkansas to visit the capital Wednesday, July 23, to assist in receiving contestants in the National Air Derby which began at Detroit Monday, July 21. The race, which will carry the planes over a nationwide circuit, is of peculiar interest to Arkansas because one of the entrants in Little Rocket, an Arkansas designed and Arkansas built plane which, on test after completion at the Command-air plant here last week broke all known speed records for planes of its power.

The Derby began at Detroit Monday with the first day's run ending at New York. The route today lies from New York to Cincinnati and Wednesday the planes are to jump from Cincinnati to Little Rock and spend the night in this city. The racing planes are expected to begin arriving at the Little Rock airport in the early afternoon and when all are in will compose a fleet of the fastest baby ships in the world.

Little Rocket, designed and built by Voelcknecke at the Command-air plant and financed by a group of Little Rock business men, made 180 miles an hour on test, the highest speed ever attained in the history of aviation by a plane equipped with a motor of less than 120 horsepower. The ship is unique in that it is of laminated and plywood construction throughout, only the tops of the wings being covered with fabric. With the exception of fittings and the motor itself, a 90-horsepower Cirrus, there is no metal about it, the motor even being mounted in a frame of laminated oak.

The little ship weighs only 610 pounds and in the last analysis is merely a motor with sufficient wing surface to carry aloft its weight and that of the pilot. Every precaution has been taken to avoid wind resistance, even necessary bolt-heads on the outside of the plane have been streamlined. The machine has a wing spread of only twenty-three feet and is only eighteen feet in length overall. A special mechanism for dropping the ailerons permits a landing speed of ninety miles an hour.

Little Rocket is Plane Number 1 in the Derby, having been the first entry registered, and in the air may be distinguished by its red fuselage and silver wings and ailerons.

Hijackers Seize Mince Meat Rum

Stage Raid on Chicago Warehouse—Haul Away Forty Barrels

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP)—Mince meat may be weak next winter. Hijackers during the night made off with 40 barrels of rum from the Libby, McNeill & Ibbey warehouse in the Union stockyards valued at $80,000.

Seven robbers wearing overalls held 34 employees at bay after closing hours last night and for more than hour rolled the heavy kegs across the warehouse and loaded them into waiting trucks, then made good their escape after a round of shots with Chicago police.

The bandits entered the warehouse about mid-afternoon yesterday, mingling with ibby employees until after closing hours. They then rounded up the night crew, and followed the watchman on his rounds, compelling him to make his customary reports on the telephone as though all were well.

Police said it was one of the boldest and well planned robberies executed in Chicago in many years.

Says Board Organized to Help Farmers, Not Politics

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—Chairman Legge of the United States Farm Board said today that the report on wheat conditions by the Board had been termed a political scheme by many.

Cannon's Vote On Ice Monopoly Is Hit By Thompson

"Got Lower Ice for Hope" Cannon Shouts in Reply

PLENTY OF ACTION

Shover Springs Hears the Opening Speeches of County Tour

A spirited exchange between Emory A. Thompson, of Fulton, candidate for representative, and Curtis Cannon, of Hope, seeking re-election, marked the first session of the Hempstead county stump tour which began this morning at Shover Springs.

Speaking next to last at the morning session, Mr. Thompson appeared to be following a rather uneventful round of good speeches and campaign argument, when he wheeled on Mr. Cannon, who had just preceded him and charged that Cannon voted for the ice monopoly bill that the legislature enacted to forbid competitive ice companies.

"I call on Mr. Cannon for an explanation," Thompson shouted.

"You'll get it," replied Cannon, starting to climb up on the platform.

Thompson was visibly disturbed by the interruption but after a mild second, said, "Go ahead."

"The ice-bill had tremendous support, and I was fighting a long hard, said Cannon. "The record will show that I first voted to table the bill. Later its passage became inevitable. I went to its proponents and pleaded with them. Finally they agreed to give Hope $100,000 reduction in the price of ice, and on that understanding I finally voted for the bill."

Support of the Martineau highway legislation, which must be reenacted in the 1931 session, was pledged by all the candidates for representative, 11 in number.

The highway issue in its local aspect was also taken up by the men in the county judge's race, whose speeches opened this morning's meeting. They spoke principally on the problem of getting farm-to-market roads, as the state program approaches completion.

Suggests Referendum

Hugh Clark suggested in the county judge's campaign that if elected, he would call a county referendum to determine by direct vote of the people whether the farm and home demonstration agent work should be carried on as an activity of the taxpayers.

This drew the comment from H. M. Stephens, another candidate for judge, that he would be guided in his attitude toward this work by the will of the majority.

The Shover Springs meeting was presided over by J. B. Beckworth, Democratic county central committee man from that precinct, and the judges and representatives were the only candidates who spoke this morning. The meeting recessed for noon luncheon, with the candidates for county clerk, tax assessor, sheriff, road overseer and constable, and for district and state officers, scheduled to be heard this afternoon.

List of Candidates

Representative: I. L. Pilkinton, E. G. Steed, Leo Robins, Leffel Gentry, A. J. Robbins, J. M. Harper, H. W. Timberlake, W. J. Hartsfield, J. R. Reed, Emory A. Thompson, Curtis Cannon.

A Juvenile Diversion

THE fact that a good many boys in their early 'teens have taken up tree-sitting in a serious way, in various parts of the republic, is probably a good deal more significant than it appears on the surface.

Tree-sitting, in case you don't know, is a new sort of endurance contest. The lads get up in trees and see who can stick there the longest. On the ground are their young friends, ready to serve as "refueling crews" and pass sandwiches and bottles of pop up to the contestants. In one case in Milwaukee the neighbors chipped in 25 cents apiece and made up a pot of something like $13 for a lad who stayed in his tree for 36 hours. Now the habit is spreading, and every city of any size has its tree-sitters, perching in the trees with an atavistic reversion to Darwinian type.

This, we repeat, is significant. For it brings this whole business of endurance records—airplane flights, flag-pole sitting, marathon dances and what not—down to its proper level, the level of the juvenile.

These youngsters, in other words, are acting normally. They have found a new stunt and they are playing with it for all it is worth. They are having a swell time out of it, and everything is as it should be.

But what a peculiar light it places all these adult endurance contests in. It assaults one with the dreadful suspicion that these other things are, likewise, really diversions for children. They are childish forms of amusement, and the country would not get so hot up over them if the majority of us were not still pretty childish in our mental processes.

What is the chief difference, anyway, between these youngsters in their trees and grown men circling about, week after week, in an airplane? The grown men are risking their lives a little more, perhaps; but otherwise the two stunts are much the same. Both appeal to undeveloped minds.

So these juvenile tree-sitters are doing us a service. They are helping us to get back our sense of proportion.

Prosperity and Purchasing Power

IT would seem to be that the best advice anyone could give to the American people today would be to tell them to spend money freely. It is the free spending of money by the public that brings prosperity.

This is a portion of a letter recently received by a business man, and no doubt the opinion here expressed is shared by many. In view of the present financial depression and the fact that much of the depression is blamed on too free spending of money and to indebtedness for things that cannot be afforded, the following from the American Society for Thrift is interesting and instructive:

It is obvious, of course, that when people generally are not spending money, less money is in circulation. It is also just as true that over-spending by the people brings about conditions of inflation and economic unsoundness. Nothing is ever gained economically by people buying things they do not need. Nothing is ever gained economically by people refraining from buying what they should have and can afford.

It should be quite apparent that the widespread spending of money for things people do not need or cannot afford represents economic waste. Such conditions, therefore, cannot rightly be called the basis of prosperity. Manifestly the prosperity of a nation must rest on the purchasing power of the people. When people have resources back of them they are individually prosperous and are able to buy what they need but if they are continually spending money for the things they do not need and cannot afford—indulging in wasteful habits—they cannot permanently prosper.

At the same time we must not overlook the fact that the standard of living of the American people is steadily improving. The bare necessities of life are not enough. We have our rightful conveniences, our comforts, our small luxuries. In this way we are developing new industries and furnishing employment for more people and more capital. All of this is within the meaning of true American progress and true American thrift. For America never goes backward.

One of the chief values of thrift is that it develops judgment in the administration of one's personal affairs. And this judgment must be used by us as the present time in deciding the proper balance to be maintained between spending and saving. We should not cultivate habits of miserliness, neither should we spend beyond our means. We must not be unmindful of the fact that we are dealing with problems of the future as well as the present. No man has a right to pauperize himself today and jeopardize his future independence under any circumstances or for any reason whatever. —Hot Springs New Era.

Our own notion is that general business will be good as soon as the general public settles down to the quaint, old-fashioned custom of working for a living instead of gambling for it.

Improvements cannot be secured for nothing but the cost of civic projects is reflected in the great changes wrought in Hope and other cities whose citizens have been progressive.

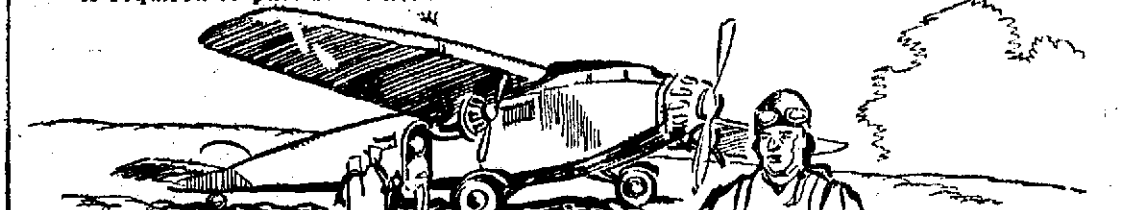

Something Auto Be Done About It!

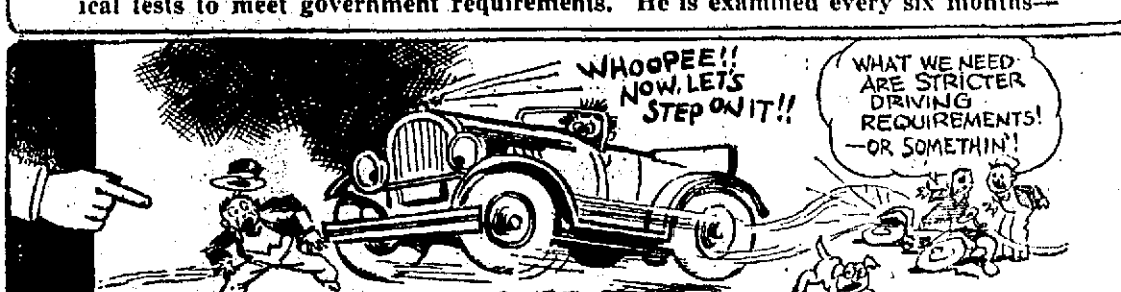

The locomotive engineer serves long years of training before his hands touch a throttle—his eyes and health are tested regularly—

The sea captain must learn his ropes, know navigation, the rules of the sea—and is required to pass strict license tests—

The transport pilot, after careful schooling, must survive rigid flying and physical tests to meet government requirements. He is examined every six months—

BUT—Have you noticed how easy it is for 'most anybody' to 'get by,' and burn up the roadways behind a high-powered motor?

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer
(Copyright, 1930, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—Maj.-Gen. Ewing E. Booth, who has become assistant chief of staff in the U. S. army without ever graduating from West Point, used to be driving a laundry wagon around the streets of Pueblo, Colo.

He always knew his horses. At the age of 5, he rode horseback from Texas to Kansas with his father, who was in the horse and cattle business and frequently drove herds to Kansas and Missouri.

"Nobody ever walked then," the general recalls. "The cattle never had seen anyone on foot and they'd take after you."

Stopped Playing Polo

Now he umpires most of the army's polo games in Washington. He used to play polo himself, but once he saw an elderly general still trying to play and heard another officer yell: "Get out of the way and let the general hit it!" So Booth quit before his game began to suffer.

He was born in Kansas in 1880 and raised in Kansas and Texas. At about 17 he took a west-bound train and got off at Pueblo for no particular reason. Not knowing anyone and being very nearly broke he was glad to take a job clerking in a shoe store and he kept that for two years. The confinement annoyed him, however, and when the foreman of the Pueblo Steam Laundry offered him the driving job, he snapped it right up.

Wagon driving was very good pay, the general recalls. He made $20 a week plus certain commissions which tended to keep the horses galloping. Not only was it very fine, outdoor work, says General Booth, but he got to know nearly everyone in town who sent their laundry out, including most of the very best people. And it wasn't so long before he had saved enough money to buy an interest in another laundry, which he owned and operated for years.

He became a member of the Colorado National Guard and the popular young man who had driven everybody's laundry around town was popular enough to be elected successively a lieutenant and the captain of his company. He served against striking miners at Cripple Creek and Leadville in the middle nineties.

Along came the Spanish War and he went to the Philippines with the 1st Colorado Volunteer Infantry. Booth today says he owes his elevation to such high rank to "just luck." Other officers attribute it to his capacity for hard, important work of an unspectacular nature. But he has also had considerable initiative and it began to crop out in the Philippines.

In 1899 he was captain of the 36th U. S. Volunteer Infantry and the militiamen were about to be sent home. Booth thought he could create a new regular company out of the militia regiments and he wrote the suggestion to General Otis, commanding the Philippine department. The colonel of his regiment said in effect that Captain Booth was crazy and that everyone wanted to go home, but Booth was authorized to go ahead and organize after Otis had cabled Washington for the permission. Booth astonished everyone; by the time he had finished he had organized three new regiments.

Between June, 1918, and June, 1919, he rose from the captaincy to be a brigadier-general. After serving at Governor's Island and Camp Upton he commanded the Eighth brigade of the Fourth division in France and participated in such major engagements as St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He commanded the right column of the American army which went into Germany. Later he was made chief of the Service of Supply in France and had the large job of getting the A. E. F. out of the country and embarked for home.

SENATOR FREED HUTTO

In presenting to the Democratic voters of Arkansas my candidacy for the office of Lieutenant Governor, I shall confine myself largely to what are considered the duties of the Lieutenant Governor and the qualifications for meeting and performing these duties—not that you do not already know what the duties of the Lieutenant Governor are, but because many of our citizens are inclined to attach little importance to this office—much less than the position deserves.

The most important duty of the Lieutenant Governor, except when acting as Governor, is that of presiding over the sessions of the State Senate, including the appointment of the various committees provided for in this branch of the legislature.

Since I am not a candidate for Governor in the primary to be held on August 12th, and since the Lieutenant Governor has a vote in the Senate only in case of a tie vote, I am not going to attempt to presume upon the intelligence of the State's citizenship by outlying to you in a spread eagle speech or a Patrick Henry oration an elaborate platform, setting forth a list of reforms which I would have you believe that I would inaugurate, if elected, nor am I going to suggest any destructive policies, but I do want to tell you a few things about myself and my public service, that you may not know me may have some basis for judging my fitness for the office of Lieutenant Governor.

RECORD OF PUBLIC SERVICE

I was reared on an Arkansas farm. I served eight years as Clerk and Sheriff of Conway County. I served for several years on the City Board of Education in Morrilton, and in the same capacity at England, where I have lived for the past twenty years. In 1926 I was elected, without opposition, Senator from the 12th Senatorial District, composed of Lonoke and Prairie Counties. I was unanimously elected President Pro Tem of the 1927 Senate. By reason of this honor, I became Lieutenant Governor in 1928, when Governor Martineau resigned the governorship and Governor Parnell, then Lieutenant Governor became Governor of the State. In this position as Lieutenant Governor I presided over the Special Session of the Legislature in 1928, and it became my duty on different occasions to serve as Acting Governor.

My record of these official capacities is an open book, upon which I am willing to stand as evidence of my ability and qualifications for the office of Lieutenant Governor. I may have made some mistakes, but, if so, they were honest ones. I have endeavored at all times to serve the best interest of my people and the State.

A CONSTRUCTIVE PLATFORM

As to my platform or policies: If the Democratic voters of Arkansas elect me as their Lieutenant Governor, I will preside over the sessions of the State Senate with fairness and impartiality; I will exercise care in the selection of the various committees, to the end that just and needed legislation will be safeguarded; I will endeavor to prevent needless or unnecessary expenses during the sessions of the Senate, and, should I have occasion to cast my vote on any measure, such vote shall be cast for what I conscientiously believe to be for the best interest of the State. Should it devolve upon me at any time to act as Governor, I shall endeavor, so far as possible in State problems, to carry out the policies of the Governor whom you elect.

Arkansas is making wonderful strides in her educational and road-building programs. It behooves every public-spirited citizen in the State to encourage and assist in the development and completion of these programs. Good schools and good roads go hand-in-hand, and there should be no letup on these programs. I cannot believe the people of the State will knowingly cast their votes for anyone upon whom there is the least suspicion of a willingness to interfere with the building of good schools and good roads.

Not only will I never perform any act which would in any way interfere with or retard the progress of education or road building in Arkansas, but I promise every contribution that is possible for me to make for the advancement of education and the building of highways in the State.

No state has made greater educational progress during the past two years than our own State, and we cannot afford to cripple this progress or take any backward step in the State's advancement educationally.

HIGHWAYS AND SCHOOLS

In the 1927 session of the legislature, I gave my full support to the passage of the Martineau Road Law. I am stronger, if there be any difference, for this law today than I was at the time I aided in its passage. I am indeed glad that I had the privilege of taking some part in the enactment of this law, for I consider it one of the most progressive measures that has ever been placed upon our statute books, insuring, as it does, a splendid system of highways, while, at the same time, it removes from the shoulders of the farmer the curse of the Special Improvement District Tax. If you elect me your Lieutenant Governor, I shall oppose to the full extent of my influence and power any move or action that would in any way have the least tendency to weaken or interfere with this law or our road-building program. We must complete our main highways and build our farm-to-market roads.

I do not carry nor have I ever carried any chip on my shoulder. What we need in our present stage of progress in Arkansas is a closed season on strife, and on activities prompted by prejudice and selfish motives; and instead of seeking to destroy the good things which have been wrought, let us throw down our hammers and pick up our horns, and turn with a united shoulder-to-the wheels of the State's educational program, the road-building program, and the program for the bettering of conditions in and around our State institutions, especially those of our State Hospitals.

In invite your investigation of my fitness for the office of Lieutenant Governor, and earnestly solicit your support and influence at the polls on August 12th.

To stoop to nothing that would soil
Your honor or your self-respect;

Sheffield Speaks at Little Rock

Judge Satisfied With the Progress He's Made in State Race

LITTLE ROCK, July 21.—(AP)—Judge John C. Sheffield of Helena, candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, addressed delegates from county Sheffield organizations and supporters in the first state-wide Sheffield political rally here Sunday.

County Judge Charles Mitchell, of Harrisburg, Poinsett county, presided at the meeting, at which Judge Sheffield outlined his campaign program relative to the highway department and taxation.

Judge Sheffield advocated continuance of the principles embodied in the Martineau road law, which comes to an end this year with completion of the four-year highway program included in its provisions. He declared he will submit to the next legislature a highway program which will assure the completion of the state highway system; provide for county roads; provide "fair" division to counties and relieve all bonded counties.

He declared he will save the state bureaus and commissions as a means of relieving tax burdens.

Reports were heard from delegations representing various sections of the state before the close of the rally.

The primary purpose of the rally was to determine the strength of his campaign throughout the state. Judge Sheffield pronounced himself satisfied.

His itinerary for the coming week included Cotton Plant, Augusta, Newport, Corning, Pigot, Rector, Marquette, Paragould, Marked Tree, Aubrey, Marion, Manilla, Osceola, Blytheville, Lake City, Walnut Ridge, Black Rock and Peachant.

Scintillating Farce to Show at Saenger Tonight

What is without doubt the best all-around British talking picture yet distributed in this country plays tonight at the Saenger theatre by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in the form of "One Enthralling Night," a comedy-farce based on the London stage success, "Rookery Nook."

The plot introduces Gerald Popkiss as a young husband who becomes innocently embroiled in a complicated situation at a country cottage, starting with the arrival of a pretty girl, a complete stranger, in pajamas.

At least two Kentucky colonels don't have to reprimand anyone for not coming to attention when they pass by on parade. They are Lola Sibbel of Lexington, "Miss Kentucky," and Cleo Snyder, "Miss Louisville," who are shown here receiving their commissions from Governor Flem D. Sampson. The two new colonels will represent Kentucky in the International Pageant of Patriotism at Galveston, Tex., in August.

The arrival of his sister-in-law and her husband and her militant suspicions bring about a number of riotous complications.

The whole cast acquit themselves well, particularly Ralph Lynn, Tow Wells and the inimitable Mary Brough in the role of an easily-shocked cleaning woman, while in Winifred Shottler, the heroine, is to be found a new screen star of great charm.

'Duck-Leg' Cattle Still A Mystery

After Studying Question For Fifty Years Is Still Baffling

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—Texas "duck-legged" cattle still are baffling to geneticists after 50 years of breeding.

The Journal of Heredity has found three conflicting accounts of the first appearance of these cattle, which are normal in every respect except that their legs are four to six inches shorter than the average.

One version is that the line developed from two black, white-spotted feet duck-leg. The appearance of purebred beef cattle on the ranges has reduced the once popular duck-legs to virtually a curiosity. Some cattlemen still breed them and insist they always are among the fattest and most thrifty in their pastures.

KONJOLA ENDS FIFTEEN YEARS OF SUFFERING

Man Had Despaired of Finding Relief—New Medicine Makes Good Again

MR. JESSIE J. RIGGS

Strange, but true, Konjola, the new and different medicine, seems at the very peak of its powers when pitted against the stubborn ills that, year after year, have hung on with the tendency of a bulldog. Take, for instance, the case of Mr. Jessie J. Riggs, R. F. D. No. 1, Webb City, Mo., who declares:

"At my age, 78, I had no idea that any medicine could help me, but Konjola surely touched the spot. For fifteen years I suffered, and all the medicine I tried proved worthless. I suffered so from rheumatism that I could not work for the past two years. My kidneys and bladder caused me to get up from seven to ten times a night. I have taken five bottles of Konjola and feel better than for 15 years. Rheumatic pains are gone, and I now do a full day's work as landscape gardener. I shall never cease to praise this splendid medicine that has done so much for me."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve deadening drugs, no heart depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients its seeping wonders to perform.

Konjola is sold in Hope, Ark., at Bryant's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Revolution Day Drum Is Found

Indiana Man Says That His Ancestors Used Instrument

INDIANAPOLIS, July 22.—(UP)—A drum, the deep tones of which served in several battles of the Revolutionary War, rests in the attic of Joseph W. Church, surrounded by dust.

The instrument, with its hand made ticks and its shell of sand maple, is intact but has not been used in any war since the great victory over England a century and a half ago.

Its known history is brief, but visitors to the Church home are aroused to speculation over the story concerning it.

Church said the drum was carried in the Revolution by Timothy Church, a brother of John Church, who was a great grandfather of the present family.

The two men fought in the battle of Quebec and were taken prisoners when the Americans were routed. Timothy died in prison but gave the drum to his brother who later gave it to his son Isaac who in turn passed it to his son, George Church.

"My father moved to Marion county in 1845 and the drum's been mine since I was a year old," Joseph Church explained.

DEROIT, July 22.—(UP)—The philosophic calm which governs the life of George Kuch can't be shaken by a four-story fall, even if he has to wait two days to be rescued.

George recently was discovered reclining on the roof of a building which stands next to one four stories taller. "I had been drinking," he explained.

"I went to see a friend in the building next door and walked off the roof. When I came too, I was on the roof of the building next door four stories down. I hollered all day trying to attract attention but I guess everyone that heard me thought I was crazy. They just walked away."

"I couldn't get up so I went to sleep." He was still sleeping the next morning when two men in the next building saw him curled upon the roof and called the police. George got

Two Indians Are Taken Out of Jail

Makers of 'Bad Medicine' Give Promise to Be Good Boys

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 22.—(UP)—On the promise that they would behave themselves and refrain from making "bad medicine," Truman Hatch, 24, and Lloyd Cantsee, 18, Navajo Indians, will be paroled from the state penitentiary and placed under the care of Edward Black, assistant Indian agent, August 20.

The two young bucks were convicted of making "bad medicine" to do away with an enemy after it was proved that they had removed the toenails and fingernails from a dead Indian, powdered them and scattered them in the drinking water of the tribe. This followed an old superstition that such an act would spread a "lethal" disease among the Indians. The exact nature of the "dis-ease" has never been explained.

Hatch and Cantsee said they were only joking and wanted to scare the tribe, but the judge before whom they were tried sentenced them to a year in prison to think over the seriousness of their "joke." They have been in the penitentiary several months.

Taught in Home School Continuously Since 1896

PAYETTEVILLE, July 22.—One-third of a century spent teaching in the same school is the record of M. L. McCall, Eureka Springs, who is enrolled in the University of Arkansas summer school. With the exception of two years Mr. McCall has taught in the school of his home town every year since 1896. One year he served as president of a Baptist college at Clarksburg, Miss., and he was principal of the high school at Green Forest, Ark., for one year.

Mr. McCall is a native of Carroll county and has lived in Eureka Springs since he began teaching there. He is interested in agriculture and owns a farm three miles from his school which he uses in part for experimental purposes.

Clara Bow Coming to Saenger Wed. and Thur.

Clara Bow has discovered that love is just as exciting among the millionaires as it is with ordinary folks; and the personality is at its finest in the sparkling comedy-musical "Love Among the Millionaires," showing at the Saenger theatre tomorrow and Thursday as it was when confined to the fleet in "True to the Navy."

Amid the clatter of dishes and the blatt tones of a nickel-in-the-slot piano, "Love Among the Millionaires" gets underway. Clara sings a song, "Believe It or Not, I've Found My Man." That's where Stanley Smith comes in and transports the Redhead to a fairy paradise of the wealthy at Palm Beach. But, even then, everything returns to run smoothly.

Stanley has a father, Claude King, who thinks a son of the rich should marry a girl of the poor, and likewise, Clara has a father, Charles Selton, who declares no daughter of his will marry a wealthy man. While the old chaps get together, Clara and Stanley have a misunderstanding which almost breaks up the romance.

"Love Among the Millionaires" is one of the most enjoyable pictures Clara Bow has ever made, and Clara really gets a chance to sing. Those who heard the "It" voice in "Paramount on Parade" and "True to the Navy" will want to hear the Redhead sing. Clara sings with her voice, her eyes, her red hair, her whole body. She handles a song like she handles a man; with pep, personality and enthusiasm.

Bank of McCaskill Ends 25-Year Career

The Bank of McCaskill, in the north end of this county, was turned over to State Bank Commissioner W. E. Taylor yesterday. It had been in operation 25 years, its final statement, as of June 30 last, showing deposits of $42,780.66 and resources of approximately $77,700. It was capitalized at $10,000, with surplus of $2,500. J. D. Eley was president and W. R. Atkins cashier.

A savings account of the president was said to represent half the individual deposits. A $6,000 deposit of state funds was protected by a like amount of state highway bonds that had been purchased by the bank and which are held by the state treasurer at Little Rock.

"A Most Immoral Lady" Coming to the Grand
